16:00 - 17:30	“Roots”: Parallel Participants-Led Sessions
16:00-17:30	Flip the script – embodying the contradictions of philanthropy // This interactive role-play session invites participants to switch roles within the philanthropy sector, with funders taking on the position of those seeking funding and vice versa, using assigned roles and poker chips to simulate real-world decision-making. Through this experiential exercise, followed by group reflections and a discussion led by Leap, the session aims to deepen understanding of philanthropy's power dynamics and inspire shifts in perspective and behavior.	Aenderwerk + LeapCollective	2.1
16:00-17:30	Redefining Power: Systems, Resources, and Collective Action // This session explores accountability in philanthropy by examining how funders can shift power dynamics through redistributive justice and trust in grassroots leadership. Through real-world case studies from Dasra's Rebuild India Fund and Thousand Currents' partnerships, participants will engage with movement leaders to learn how funders can challenge traditional hierarchies and support systemic social change.	Dasra + Thousand Currents + Anubhuti Trust and Payana + FENSUAGRO	S1
16:00-17:30	Accountability by Design - Reflections and Questions from the Global Statelessness Fund // This session explores the “accountability by design” approach of the Global Statelessness Fund, a grant-making initiative co-created by stateless activists, civil society, and donors to shift power and remove barriers to funding. Through discussion and interaction, participants will be invited to reflect on the tensions and trade-offs that need to be navigated when centering accountability in funding practices - balancing participatory decision-making and efficiency, flexible funding and accompaniment, all while being responsive to the needs and realities of the movements that we serve.	Blue Sky Social Justice Fund + Family Frontiers + Institute on Statelessness and Inclusion	3.2
16:00-17:30	Rooting Accountability: Survivor-Centered Reforms, Intersectional Frameworks, and Philanthropy's Role in Systemic Change // This session will explore innovative approaches to accountability by centering survivor-informed, community-driven models and examining philanthropy's role in enabling long-term, systemic change. It will also propose bold, systemic alternatives, such as trauma-informed, survivor-centered activist-centered legal frameworks, that challenge existing patriarchal structures in justice systems.	SAHR + Women Help Women + Las Comadres	2.2
16:00-17:30	What do we leave behind when the grant ends? Building solidarity and breaking philanthropic dependency // Co-organised by Weaving Liberation, Dalan Fund, Numun Fund and Whose Knowledge? This session explores how philanthropy can move beyond short-term grants to build sustainable infrastructure for movement resilience in the face of rising political and financial instability. Participants will be invited to explore and contribute to a collective mapping of knowledge and practice on reparatory funding models, solidarity	Nuumun Fund + Dalal Fund + Weaving Liberation + Whose Knowledge?	2.3

	economies, and collective infrastructure strategies to foster long-term movement sustainability and resource justice.
16:00-17:30	Supporting Just Transition Strategies Led by Frontline Workers and Communities // This session explores Just Transition as a grassroots-driven framework led by labor unions, Indigenous Peoples, and environmental justice communities to counter corporate co-optation and drive systemic change. Featuring insights from frontline leaders and funders, it highlights place-based strategies tackling poverty and pollution while calling on philanthropy to realign its practices to support regenerative economies and frontline self-determination.	Just Transition Alliance + Global Greengrants + IEN + South African Waste Pickers Association	S3B
16:00-17:30	Liberation and the Long Game: Four philanthropic leaders share how they are working to transform systems, shift power, and advance racial justice amidst the current socio-political climate // This session brings together four philanthropic leaders from local, national, and international contexts to discuss strategies for transforming systems, shifting power, and advancing racial justice in today's socio-political climate. Through insights from ABFE, Lambent Foundation, The Skillman Foundation, and the National Performance Network, participants will explore solidarity-building, risk-taking, and long-term approaches to fostering equity and systemic change	ABFE: A Philanthropic Partnership for Black Communities + Lambent Foundation + Racial Equity + National Performance Network	S4
16:00-17:30	Values in Practice: Applying Lessons from Org. Transitions to Shift Mindsets, Change Cultures & Embed // This session explores how organizational transitions can serve as opportunities to embed accountability and shift cultures by rooting in values of respect, trust, and solidarity. Through lessons from Voqal Partners and BYP100, participants will collaboratively define core values and develop actionable frameworks to challenge traditional philanthropic models and cultivate transformative, values-driven partnerships.	Voqal + BYP100	3.1
16:00-17:30	When funding is not enough: what does holistic support for leaders with lived experience look like ? // This session examines how funders can be accountable to both individuals with lived experience and the broader social movements they engage with, using examples from the anti-trafficking and disability rights sectors. Through discussion and shared experiences, participants will explore strategies for resourcing lived experience leadership while fostering more inclusive, diverse movements that center and value their expertise.	Freedom Fund + Disability rights Fund	Plaza del Jubileo

16:00-17:30	Conspiring and constellating: how intermediaries uphold accountability to movements // This session explores the vital role of intermediary donors in redistributing resources and upholding accountability to movements, ensuring funding reaches communities resisting systems of power. Through discussions on resource activism and non-financial support, it highlights how intermediaries foster alliances, adaptability, and collective sensemaking while advancing the decolonization of philanthropy.	FRIDA + ADD International + Both Ends + HIP + Corporate Accountability	S3A
17:30-18:00	Reflection Pods: A space for participants to connect, build deeper relationships, reflect on the learnings and challenges of the day, and share anything else that may come up during the conference. All conference attendees will be assigned a reflection pod, and will meet at the end of each day.	Pod Leaders	Each pod will be allocated a space at the conference

12:30-14:00	Rest, Lunch, Disconnect

14:00-15:30	“Roots & Branches”: Parallel Participants-Led Sessions
14:00-15:30	Indigenous Peoples’ and Indigenous Women’s Movements: Reclaiming Power and Accountability in Philanthropy // This session examines how Indigenous Peoples’ and Indigenous women’s movements are reclaiming power in philanthropy by establishing self-determined financial governance structures that ensure direct, long-term, and unrestricted funding. Through insights from ECMIA, CONAMI, CHIRAPAQ, and the UN Voluntary Fund for Indigenous Peoples, participants will explore how philanthropy can move beyond donor-driven models to uphold true accountability, autonomy, and Indigenous-led decision-making.	CONAMI Mexico + CHIRAPAQ + ECMIA	Plaza del Jubileo
14:00-15:30	The Nyéléni Call to Action: Mobilising Globally for Justice and Food Sovereignty // This session highlights the 3rd Nyéléni Forum as a pivotal global gathering for food sovereignty, uniting social movements and funders to advance systemic change. Through discussions with movement leaders and funders, it will explore how philanthropy can align with grassroots solutions, strengthen the Nyéléni Process, and support transformative, community-led efforts for social, economic, and climate justice.	GRAIN - La Via Campesina - World March of Women - Growing Culture - Grassroots International	S3B
14:00-15:30	Alternative community protections for migrants, asylum seekers, and migrants under authoritarian regimes // This session explores how organizations and funders can collaborate to create alternative community protections for migrants, asylum seekers, and refugees facing increasing threats under authoritarian regimes. Through expert discussions and breakout dialogues, participants will examine innovative, community-led approaches in Mexico, Colombia, and the U.S., identifying strategic philanthropic opportunities to strengthen local ecosystems and long-term protections for vulnerable communities.	Panta Rhea Foundation + Asylum Access Mexico + Hispanics in Philanthropy + Conrad N Hilton Foundation	2.3
14:00-15:30	Rethinking Accountability in Philanthropy: Strengthening Values-Aligned Relationships for Systemic Change // This session explores accountability as the foundation for values-aligned relationships in philanthropy, inviting participants to reflect on reciprocal accountability and its tensions. Through insights from participatory grantmakers and movement representatives, the session will foster dialogue, build a visual accountability map, and create a collective tool to strengthen accountability practices for systemic change	Global Fund for Children + Dalan Fund + Ruleli Corporación Social y Cultural + Whose Knowledge? - Disability Rights Fund	S4
14:00-15:30	Cross-pollinating knowledge: A decolonial feminist practice in philanthropy // This session explores decolonial feminist approaches to knowledge and MEAL (Monitoring, Evaluation, Accountability, and Learning) in philanthropy, challenging donor-driven, Global North-centric practices that reinforce power imbalances. Through insights from feminist funds in the Global South, participants will examine alternative MEAL frameworks that center marginalized voices, foster reciprocal learning, and reimagine accountability beyond extractive reporting requirements.	Urgent Action Fund LAC + Fenomenal Funds / Fondo Semillas	S1

14:00-15:30	A Just Energy Transition Starts with Workers: The Responsibility of Philanthropy // This session examines philanthropy’s role in funding a just energy transition that prioritizes workers, particularly in the Global South, where flexible, long-term support remains scarce. Through insights from FORGE and the Democracy at Work Fund, participants will explore how funders can align resources with labor and climate justice, ensuring that frontline workers, especially women and migrants, are at the center of transition strategies	FORGE + Avina + Sembada Bersama + CUT Brazil + Ford Foundation	2.2
14:00-15:30	Challenging Oppressive Funding: Palestinian Resistance and Grassroots Independence // Funding Palestine liberation has become a reference point for movement-centered philanthropy. This session examines how philanthropy has been weaponized to restrict and control Palestinian liberation work and what we can learn from the efforts to resist it. Participants will explore how funders can invest in their own irrelevance by supporting grassroots movements in Palestine and other contexts to build long-term self-sustaining infrastructure on their own terms.	Rawa + Owneh + Funding Freedom+Funder4Palestine	S3A
14:00-15:30	The Future of Funding in the Global North: Resisting Retrenchment and Reimagining Philanthropy // This session examines the shifting landscape of philanthropy amid the rise of far-right influence, focusing on the impact of reduced funding for Global North organizations engaged in resistance and solidarity work. Using the case of Open Society Foundations’ withdrawal from Western Europe, discussions will explore the role of Global North movements, the contradictions within philanthropic priorities, the colonial background of international aid and the need to sustain grassroots organizing that are building a systemic transition in an interconnected world.	ODG + Calala	2.1
14:00-15:30	Feminist Philanthropic Collaboratives in the Face of Backlash: Lessons Learned from the Global South // This session explores how feminist philanthropic collaboratives in the Global South navigate growing backlash, funding gaps, and restrictive policies while ensuring sustainable resourcing for feminist movements. Through shared lessons, dialogue with funders, and actionable recommendations, participants will examine strategies for resilience, deepen funder accountability, and strengthen feminist-led collaborations that challenge traditional funding paradigms.	Kombo Consortium + Leading from the South Consortium	3.2

“Branches” Parallel Participants-Led Sessions
16:00-17:30	Resourcing Indigenous Movements: Shifting Power and Strengthening Partnerships in Philanthropy // This session examines how progressive philanthropy can better support Indigenous and frontline movement leaders by addressing power imbalances and funding systemic change. Through firsthand insights from Latin American Indigenous leaders and funders like Corporate Accountability, SAGE	Corporate Accountability + SAGE Fund+ Acción Ecológica	S4

	Fund, and True Cost Initiative, participants will explore alternative funding models that foster equitable partnerships, flexibility, and long-term movement sustainability.
16:00-17:30	Cohorts, Convenings and Bridge Building: Lessons and Best Practices in Forging Authentic Collaborations // This session explores best practices in cohort-based funding and network collaborations that strengthen grassroots power and advance climate justice. Featuring insights from UMI Fund, GAIA, and Global Greengrants, participants will learn how funders and movements can build trust, bridge silos, and co-create solutions that drive systemic change in plastic, zero waste, and climate justice efforts.	Global Alliance for Incinerator Alternatives (GAIA) + Urban Movement Innovation Fund (UMI) + Global Greengrant Fund	2.1
16:00-17:30	On the Right Track: Cross-Regional Feminist Alliances Against the Global Far-Right // This session explores the On the Right Track (OTRT) initiative, a cross-regional alliance of feminist and women's funds uniting movements across Latin America and Europe to counter anti-gender and far-right forces. Participants will examine how OTRT supports civil society and grassroots initiatives, fostering resilience and strategic resistance against the rise of global far-right networks.	filia. die frauenstiftung + Women's Fund Armenia + Reconstruction Women's Fund + Fondo Lunaria + Fondo Alquimia.	2.2
16:00-17:30	What Do Movements Need in This Moment // This session shares key insights from Thousand Currents' extensive consultation with 131 social movement partners across 50 countries, highlighting what movements need to thrive in today's challenging landscape. Through an interactive fireside chat, participants will explore themes of interconnected struggles in climate, food, and economic justice, and discuss actionable ways for funders and allies to meaningfully support movement resilience and transformation.	ThousandCurrents + FENMUCARINAP + FENSUAGRO	S1
16:00-17:30	Resourcing Justice Through Repair: A Playful Exploration of Transformative Philanthropy // This session, led by Weaving Liberation, Numun Fund, and Whose Knowledge?, explores transformative resourcing systems centered on repair and accountability in philanthropy. Through a gamified strategy, participants will engage with the concept of reparations as an ongoing, relational process, challenging traditional funding models and envisioning resourcing as a tool for systemic justice and collective liberation.	Weaving Liberation + Numun Fund and Whose Knowledge?	3.2
16:00-17:30	Flanking Black Feminist Movements: Strategic Funding for Repair and Crisis Prevention // This session applies a Black feminist analysis to philanthropy's role in crisis response, highlighting how funding often arrives too late or in ways that exacerbate harm. Drawing from the report Black Feminist Movements and Crises, participants will engage in critical conversations about how funders can shift from reactive to proactive strategies, investing meaningfully in Black feminist movements to repair past harms and prevent future crises.	Black Feminist Fund	3.1
16:00-17:30	Movement accountability beyond participatory grantmaking: Integral accompaniment to amplify resources // This session challenges the notion that movement accountability ends with participatory	FRIDA, The Young Feminist Fund + MamaCash	2.3
